

Better together: introducing the multigenerational house of Johannesberg

Volunteering activity from 01.09.2021 until 31.08.2022 in Aschaffenburg, Germany.

Project description

You simply like working with people, no matter what age, origin or nationality they have? You enjoy playing with kids but also like spending time with the elderly? Then the "Mehrgenerationenhaus Lebenträume" is just the place for you!

The multi-generational house in the small village of Johannesberg (4000 inhabitants) is a meeting place for all generations. It's open to people of all ages, nationalities and origin. Their claim is "Everybody is welcome!" and the most important principle is „The young help the elderly and vice versa“. Their offer includes child-care, working with elderly people, helping refugees and migrants and much much more!

As a European volunteer you get the chance to experience many different fields of work through the wide range of diverse activities and projects the multigenerational house has to offer. You are also invited to initiate your own ideas and projects.

Johannesberg is a small community with 4000 inhabitants and it has a lot to offer. There are many different events and clubs to choose from. Every summer the „Mühlbergfest“ takes place, a very popular open-air festival for young people. Johannesberg is well connected by local transport to the city of Aschaffenburg. With 70 000 inhabitants it is the next larger city just 8 km away with lots of museums, cinemas and places to go out for young people.

Accommodation, food and transport arrangements

You live in a furnished flat in the village of Johannesberg. You are provided with a bus pass for travelling to Aschaffenburg. You get a monthly food allowance and/or eat at the multigenerational house.
